TORINO

This yearbook was prepared by the high school students of the A.C.A.T. School.

Inspired by the spirit of friendship, Rie discovers the true meaning of internationalism.

A.C.A.T.: The Joy of Discovering the World in One's Classroom.

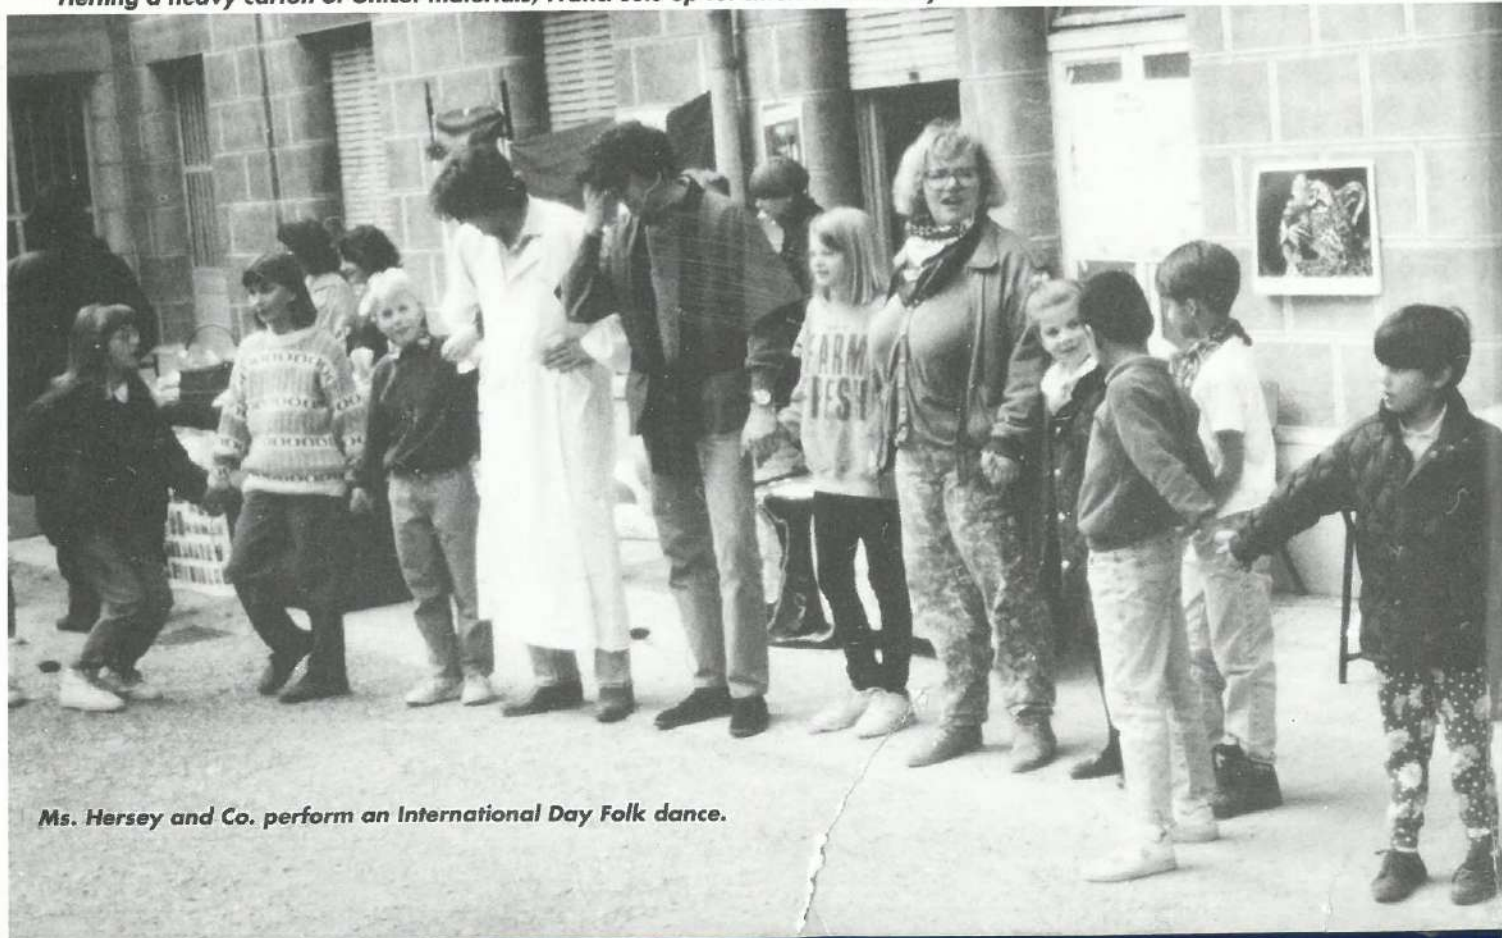

For well over 20 years, A.C.A.T.-I.S.T. community has been enriched by its international character. Students from 19 nations blend naturally into our diverse student body. Traditionally they contribute something special by virtue of their culture. In turn, they take something precious away with them having learned much about themselves and others with equally interesting backgrounds. It is this spirit of internationalism that we are proud to present in the 1994 yearbook.

Hefting a heavy carton of Unicef materials, Franci sets up for International Day.

Zoe directs the layout of Australia's exhibit at International Day.

Ms. Hersey and Co. perform an International Day Folk dance.

Sharing a Swedish Christmas tradition, Katy and Michaela become twin Santa Lucia's.

From his memorable experiences in Brasil, Dr. Eliott reminisces with a captivated third grade.

Donning her Kimono and sandals for International Day Yoshiko puts away her "western" shoes.

A break during "Working" allows for closer cultural exchange.

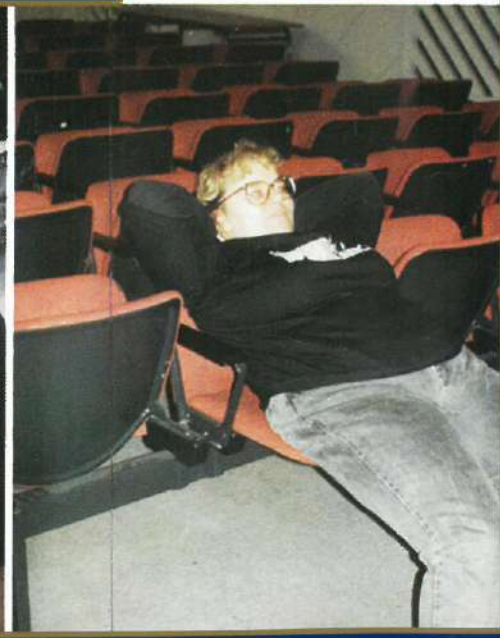

For Ms. Ronzan every occasion is a good chance for practicing her English.

DEDICATION

Dear Miss Hersey,
When there is someone as special as you, someone that touches the heart of a community you need to be commended. You came and in three short years you created a strong music department. With your lively spirit, fun lessons, and outgoing confidence you produced the shows, concerts, and all the special holidays we have shared. We love you for who you are and what you have done for us. You created a special bond between us and you helped us create those bonds with each other. You challenged us and brought out our best. For all of this and much more, we thank you and dedicate this 1994 yearbook to you.

Love Always,
Your A.C.A.T. kids

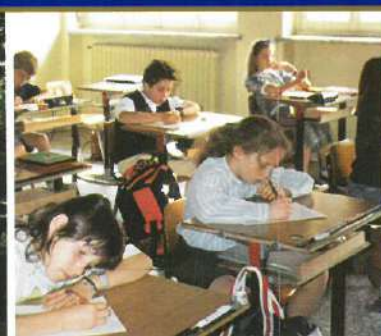

ACADEMICS

"There is some mysterious ingredient in the learning atmosphere of A.C.A.T.-I.S.T. that makes young people from around the world feel comfortable, happy, and accomplished."

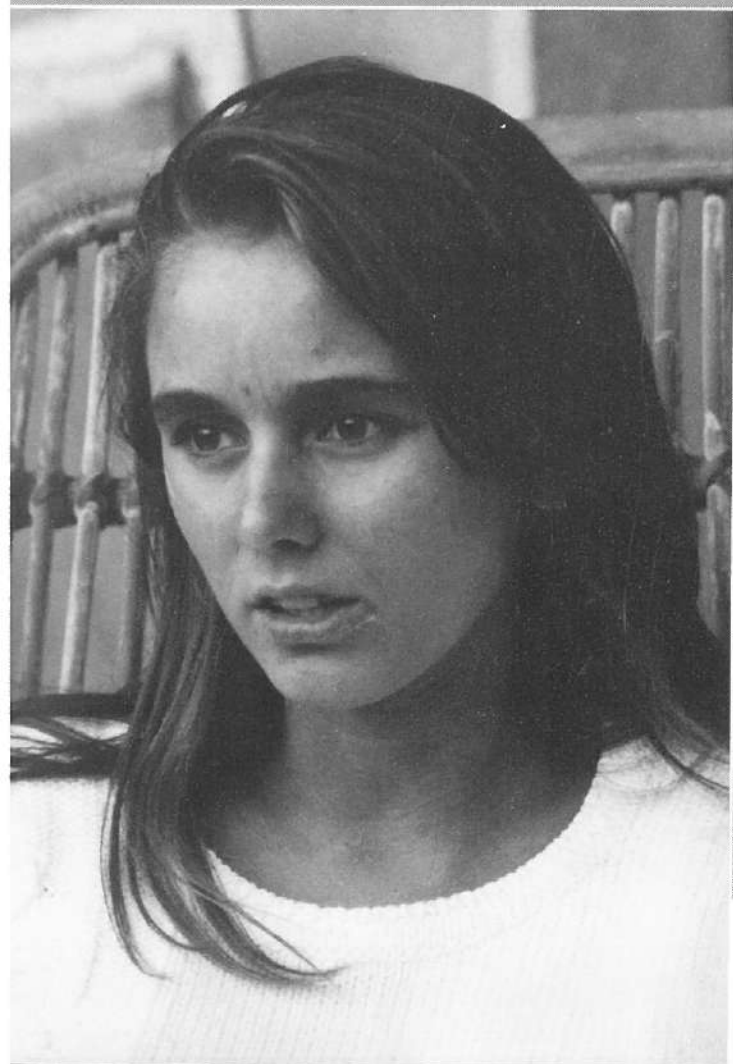

... Andrea Palisca, Tenth grade student

BARBARA CAMBIATI

Bobo ... describes herself as stubborn, intelligent, pessimistic, jealous and romantic. She will remember her years at A.C.A.T. for Mr. Boyle's three period lessons, "A.C.A.T. on Broadway", "Working" and Student Council. Barbara loves English and reading "gory" Steven King novels. She hopes to speak English in her job and to raise a family. Her best advice is "Be Determined".

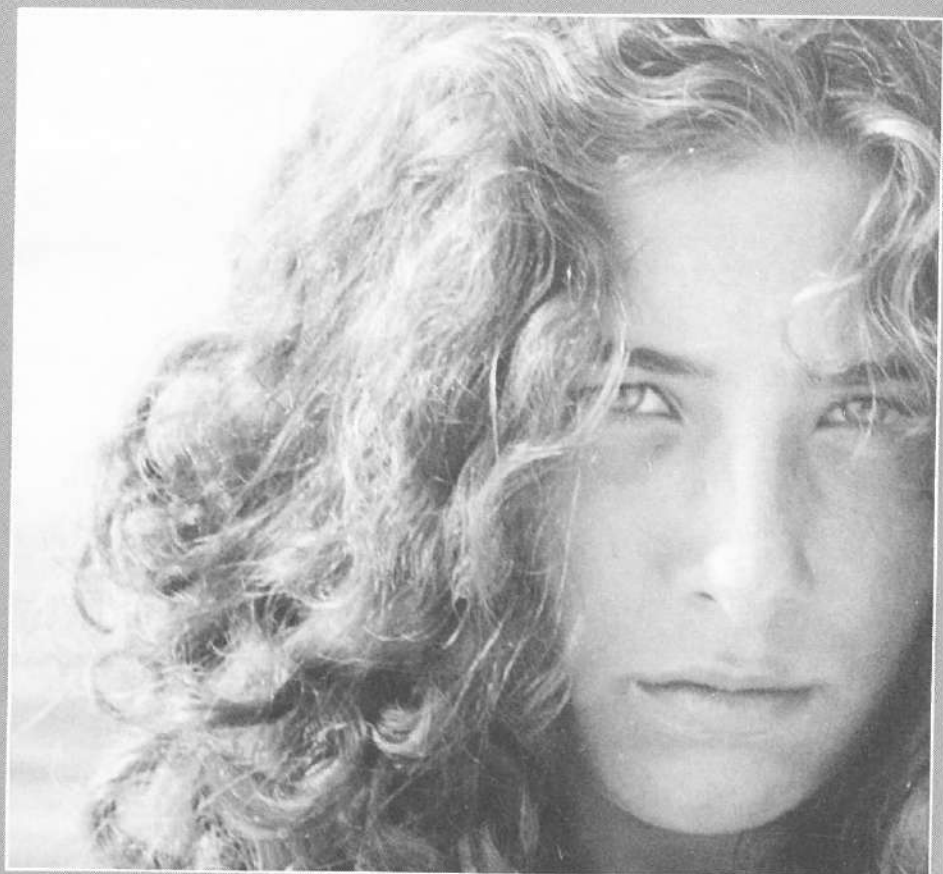

KIRSTEN GELSOMINI

Kirsten our favorite "scatter brain" (as Mr. Leiser would have had it) is stubborn, inquisitive, sweet and sour, and realistic. Kirsten holds great memories of A.C.A.T. activities like the musicals, M.U.N., Student Council and Yearbook. In her life she hopes to save all animals, have five dogs, two horses, parachute from a plane, donate her organs to science and be cremated. Her parting words to us are "The more you get involved, the more you will love it- there are beautiful secrets to discover at A.C.A.T."

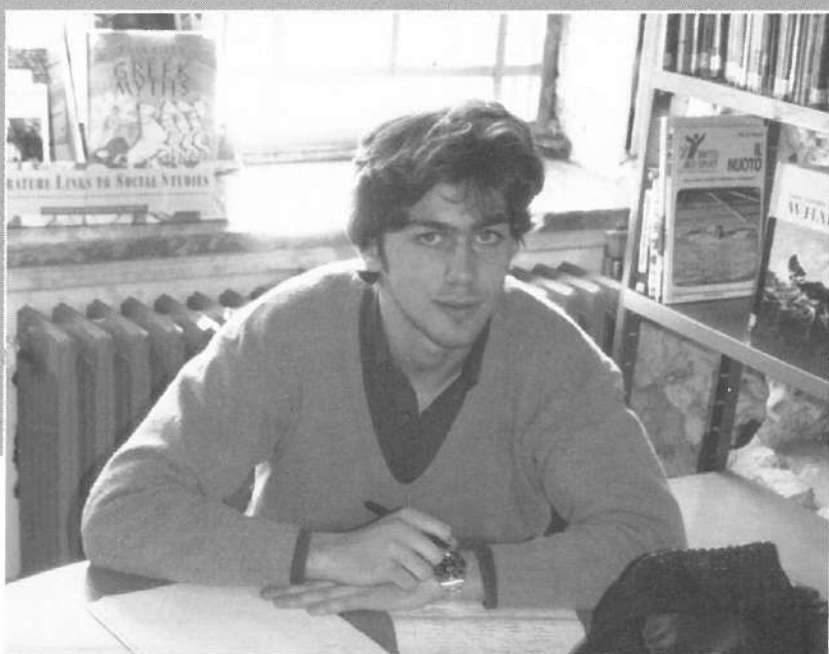

VALENTINA NICOLUCCI

Valentina, or better yet "Curly Q", is unique, crazy, and kind. She enhanced her A.C.A.T. days by her diligence in school. Righteous Vale wishes the world were just. She dreams of being an actress and wants future A.C.A.T. graduates to remember "Be yourself, There is only one of you. Remember your uniqueness."

HECTOR PERRONE

Known to his friends as Pollo, Hector is silly, impulsive, likable, and carefree. He distinguished his years at A.C.A.T. by his help with the production of "Working" and as master of ceremonies at the Christmas concerts. At present his major extra-curricular past time is Francesca but in the future he hopes to pursue a career in business management.

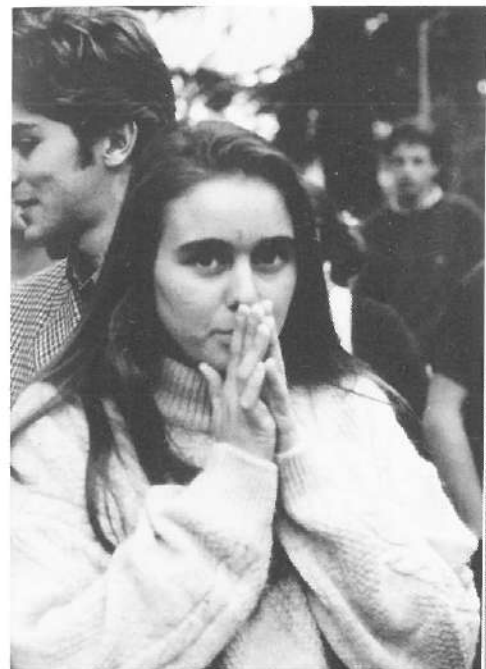

MONICA ZABALDANO

After memorable years at A.C.A.T., Monica is now ready to dive into the field of tourism. Charismatic and full of life, Moni will never forget her nights at Naxos with Lisa, Bardonecchia, La Mandria, "ilsole", "Mario Bros", and Egg Day. Her only yet valuable advice to A.C.A.T. students is one which was true for her "It opened the doors of the world for us, and we went through."

Senior Candida

Wistful Kirsten meditates on her fleeting senior year.

Almost finished with high school, Barbara recalls her good times at ACAT.

When the restaurant's full, Paola and Monica have no problems in adapting to the situation.

Prudent Paola and Valentina prefer to observe the egg-drop from a higher position.

Hector and Goff- all dressed up and no place to go.

River Rafting: Rough Paddling for ACAT Adventure Seekers

Our intrepid Mr. Abbot slashes back from his white-water adventure.

Waiting for the water to rise is all part of the adventure.

(DPS) Following the crisp orders of the guide, Rafters soon discover what the adventure is about.

Helmeted and safety-instructed, Acateers get psyched for their excursion.

Shouldering their raft with ease, sturdy Acateers forge ahead to the river.

's more work getting on the river than there is on the

Walter confidently undertakes his first rafting mission.

As an ACAT tradition, the year began with the annual River-Rafting excursion. Parents and students ventured to Val D'Aosta for a breath-taking run on the Dorea Baltea River. After the thrills and spills everyone reserved space for the next outing.

Bouncing in the river the whole day may result in unusual consequences.

Welcome Back Barbecue: Green Light for a Great Year.

An A.C.A.T. Barbecue is the right setting for Alumni reunions.

A brilliant sunshine chased away the week-long build-up of clouds and threatening rain: it was a hopeful sign that the annual barbecue was only the beginning of a banner year at A.C.A.T. The upper garden transformed into an umbrella-shaded restaurant; the enticing aroma of barbecued meat permeated the air; teachers, parents, and kids milled about and welcomed new-comers, all contributing to a festive start of the school year.

Melissa can always count on her mom for support ... even at a barbecue!

Halloween: A Weird Import From America

On October 31st a motley line-up of sheet-draped mini-ghosts, black-capped witches and sundry other person of vivid imaginations meandered helter-skelter down into the lower garden toward Ville Roddolo. There the "Ancients" were once again treated to that bizarre import from America - Halloween.

Then the hook-nosed, wicked witch led the unsuspecting spook into the magic garden ...

Searching for new teaching talent, Dr. Elliot interview a clown witch.

On any school day you can meet just about anyone, but at Halloween you're really in for a people treat.

It takes special talent to outspook an ACAT spook.

The 4th Graders get ready to show their true Halloween talent to the Ancients.

At his first general Elementary assembly, Dr. Elliot noticed something strange in the atmosphere.

With a quick adjustment Ms. Zabaldano readjusts another little spook.

Frightening devil eyes, one scheming devil, a peaceful little scarecrow and a smiley pumpkin are the Halloween ingredients we like best.

Working: A Unique Learning Experience

Teaching each other, helping each other and trying to understand each other were a big part of the three months of preparation of "Working". The highlights of the past three months were eating Pizza in the gym and learning over and over words to a song or the moves to a dance. Everyone that took part in the "Working" experience learned something important either about themselves or about each other. Finally opening night came and with great emotion was a success. The cast and crew pulled off a spectacular show!

The Alumni Association

There's always room for more at an alumni dinner.

FRIENDS of A.C.A.T. is an alumni association with membership extended to parents, spouses of alumni, and former teachers. The goal is to keep former A.C.A.T. members in touch with each other and with the school Social events, dinners, and parties are held to meet this purpose.

Happy to be back, former students waited patiently for their food but ...

... the alumni president, Giorgio Pogliano, had saved ten years worth of welcome-back speech

Vicki and Priscilla check out the surprise part of the menu.

THE HAGUE INTERNATIONAL MODEL UNITED NATIONS

XXVI ANNUAL SESSION
January 1994

MODEL UNITED NATIONS: The Student's U.N.-a Way to Enhance International Relationships and Learn the Real Parliamentary Procedures.

When we first signed up to go to M.U.N., all we were thinking of was a week off school, a week of real fun. Instead, as the months went by and the M.U.N. students, in all, became more involved in parliamentary procedure as we understood that having a good time was not the only good of the trip. In the end, the trip was both fun and an incredible learning experience. The fun was the Kuwaiti, the Belgians, the Chinese food, Amsterdam, the creepy beauty and much more; the learning experience was learning manners through the parliamentary procedure, gaining courage to speak in front of a crowd, and broadening our international horizons through our committee sessions. What happened that week, these young adults will cherish forever.

M.U.N. PARTICIPANTS: Kristen G., Goffredo B., Elisa P., Simona B., Hisham A., Alessia B., Paolo P., Paola A., Anna A., Andrea P., Sara T., Maddalena C., Maresa J., Francesca G., Mohamed K., Carl P., adviser: Mr. Gaudet

THE NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY: Knowledge, Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Character.

On June 14 the three students who best represented these qualities were inducted into the society. Congratulations are extended to Francesca Genesio, Carl Piovano and Sarah Thieneman.

Opening the induction ceremony Ms. Russo explains the standards of the National Honor Society.

International Day: By Their Snacks You Know Them!

Where else can you go and find a scrumptious buffet of Swedish meatballs, Japanese Sushi, American brownies, followed up by Brazilian chocolates, Scottish scones and a sip of Arabic karkade or American Kool-Aid? At International Day on March 27th Acateers found not only an enticing array of snacks but also an intriguing display of Ethnic pride.

The PTA Art Fair: A Colorful Leap Into The Spring

Once again the P.T.A. in its unlimited generosity to the school created yet another fun activity for artistic little actors. Painted faces, colorful necklaces and little homemade Teddybears all inspired the kids imagination and once again demonstrated the P.T.A.'s efforts on behalf of the school.

With an appropriate mini-sign, Mr. and Mrs. Kimura officially open the "shrink art" stand.

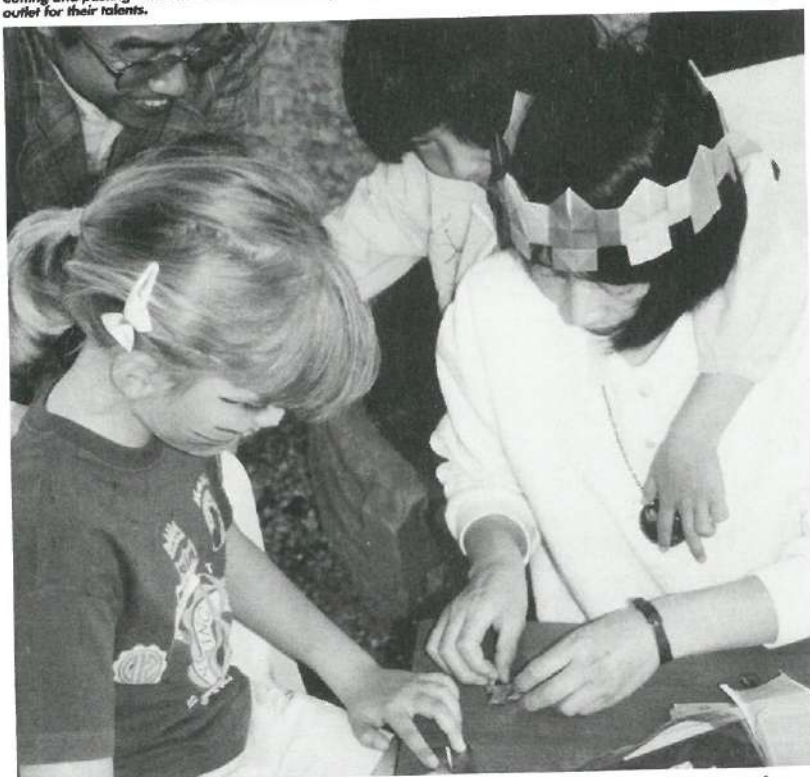

With help from kibitzing friends, the Canavesios get the raffle tickets ready.

Easter Hat Parade: Another Colorful A.C.A.T. Moment.

No activity announces spring more happily than the annual Easter Hat Parade. Elementary students, their teachers, and even some parents busily set themselves to creating brightly colored hats and paraded them before beaming, camera-toting parents.

A duck-billed Sombbrero tries to escape from its protective owner.

Francesca beams from a shower of colors and sty

Some days it's difficult to keep one's hat and one's cool at the same time.

A chick-topped mini-general orders her troops forward.

Amidst the feathers, flowers, yellow chicks, and colored eggs, Ms. Hersey finds a happy chorus.

Egg Day: Return of a Crowd Pleaser

Under the tutelage of the Math and Science depts., Egg Day enjoyed a crowd pleasing revival as prospective engineers devised the cleverest way to keep an egg intact after being released from varying heights.

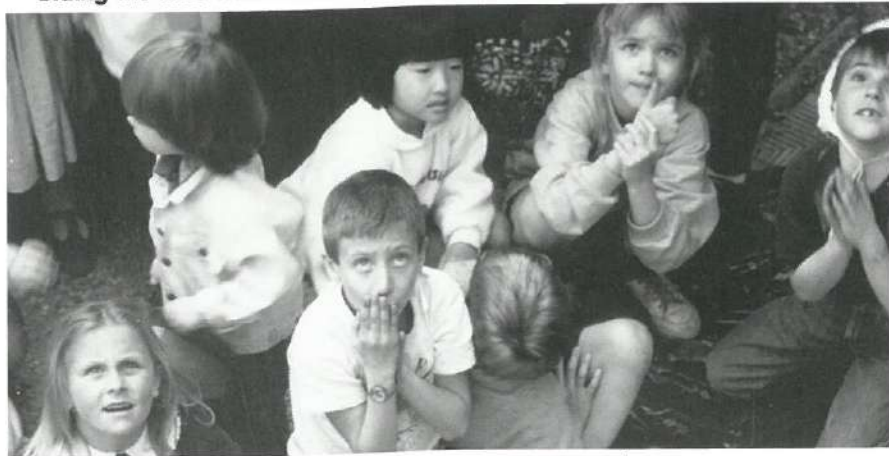

Creative Mrs. Russo introduces the first successful "Bungee jumping" egg.

Rallying around the target area ACAT students listen to the competition rules.

Biding the time with mixed emotions, students wait for the next egg drop.

A huge cosmic-type egg appeared ...

Exuberant Raya eagerly cheers her 1st egg down to ground level.

Upstairs referee, Mr. Mores gets ready for the next egg launch.

Surrounded by her students Mrs. Russo anxiously watches her egg fall.

Bemused participants glance down at their unsuccessful drop.

Good old Mr. Vacchina would never let anybody lose.

Victorious Elena is applauded for her original chicken basket contraption.

CAREER DAY: The Human Side of Work.

"On duty" at the front gate, Raya and Lori await the first guest speakers.

Making-up is hard to do, unless you know Elisabetta Donat-Cattin, make-up consultant for Teatro Stabile.

Wrapt Inventus fans absorb Mr. Betlega's anecdotes.

The Eighth grade sponsored this year's Career Day on May 13, inviting 30 speakers to share personal views of their professions. As students put aside their history, math, and English to hear about such topics as Car Designing, Journalism, Aeronautic Engineering or Medicine they found the change of pace instructive and entertaining. An afternoon of participation workshops brought a fun conclusion to the day.

Discussing the latest developments in his field, Mr. Appendino holds court before future Robotic Engineers.

Gynecologist, Dr. Trivelli keeps her audience alert with lively anecdotes.

With a portfolio of sketches, product designer Peter Janssen illustrates his latest project.

At a self-defense workshop, Silvia the giant-killer lays her opponent out on the mat.

Feisty Teresa manages to get the last word in.

Nostalgic Giorgio recalls ALL the old career days with Mr. Vacchina.

Gentle Davide learns that by his resuscitation efforts the dummy suffered three broken ribs.

At our impromptu open air theatre under the direction of Philip Radice, Francis the Grump brings the crowd to life.

The Fourth Grade just spills over with Christmas spirit.

Topping the traffic is Ed's favorite hobby.

Mrs. McKenzie's pronto-cupcake service to the rescue.

A cupcake rewards each of the 2nd Graders for successfully completing the Read-a-thon.

Halloween Dance: One of the Highlights of the Student Council's Social Calendar

With the coming of Halloween, the Student Council successfully sponsored the traditional Halloween Dance, one of the major highlights of ACAT activities. Immediately catching the spirit of the activity, students of the upper school wore their weirdest clothes.

With a lightweight witch and a few sandwiches Paolo's dance is complete.

Derek and Michele show the kids a step or two.

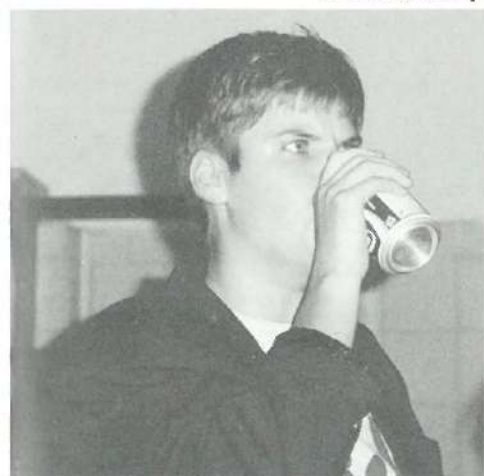

Sixth Graders enthusiastically participate in their first dance.

Enjoying their last chance to be strange before going off in the world to be strangers, the seniors blend in with the mood of the night.

A witch, two pumpkins, and a scarecrow spotlight the 11th Grade class spirit.

Having danced all night, Siri needs an energy boost.

Exhausted 7th Graders decide to retire from the dance floor.

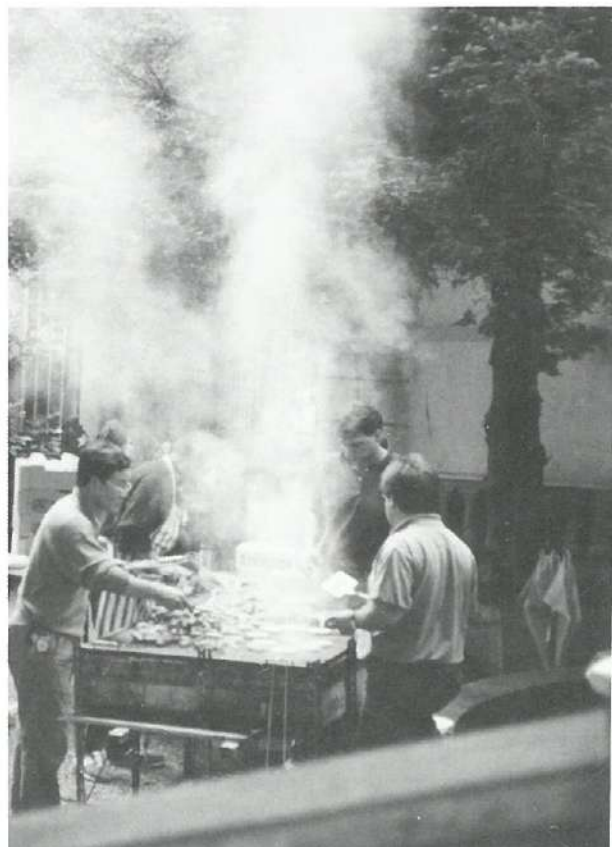

Creative 10th Graders display their artistic costumes and frame them all with a charming smile.

The Stracue (post Stracat): A New Way to Discover Moncalieri

A break in tradition sometimes reveals a pleasant surprise as was seen in this year's STRACAT. For logistical reasons, the PTA transferred the setting of the annual 8 kilometer race from Pecetto's appetizing cherry orchards to the hilly back roads of Moncalieri where 160 participants found a difficult but pleasant change of place.

At the raffle, a ripple of excitement stirred up the placid atmosphere of our 'Strafternoon

Putting a bit of oriental flavor into the barbecue, Mr. Kimura offers the "Roadrunners" his services.

After a day of Stracue fun everybody helped with the clean-up.

First in her group, Shy Francesca accepts the cup from Ms. Icardi.

For Travis, being the youngest runner on the hills had its reward.

Some spectators were interested in the start and some in the finish.

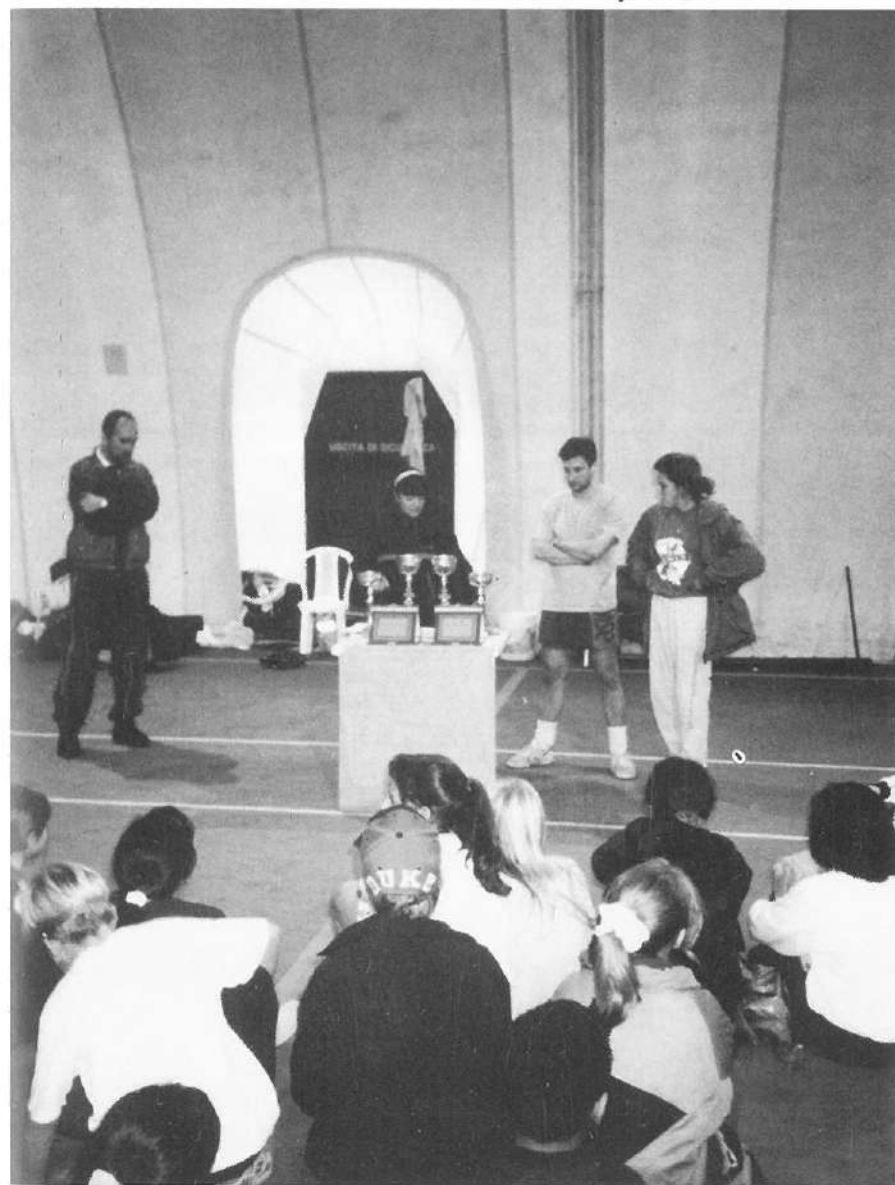

Goffredo, winner of the race with Tony, proudly receive his cup from Sarah.

Sports Day: A New Event for ACAT's Athletes

Exhausted and triumphant, the A-team holds their trophy up high.

Ms. Ronzan warmly congratulates the participants at the end of the gameful day.

Nobody loses here at ACAT; we're all a bunch of winners!

Ms. Ronzan works at the final revision of the Sports Day schedule.

Soccer and Volleyball were the major highlights of a Saturday afternoon that brought ACAT kids together. Friendly competition became the basis of a day that ended up in lots of smiles for all.

Mini Olympics: A Fun Way to Be Like the Big Kids

After a few last minute instructions, Paola prepares her runners for the relay.

Edoardo confidently leaves the start for the first lap of the relay.

With the first colored blocks behind her, Danielle sprints ahead to win for her team.

The little athletes burst from the starting hoops.

Nonchalant teammates await their turns with Spartan indifference.

Andrea pauses to find the front of his hair and loses the race.

Maxi Olympics: The Big Kids'
Way to Test Their Abilities

With a springboard takeoff, J.C. Sets the maxi-Olympic record.

Agile Carlos glides smoothly over the high jump.

With a speedy approach, Steve gets set for the long jump.

Ms. Ronzan explains the rules for fair play.

Propelled by a good run Michael sprints to the high jump.

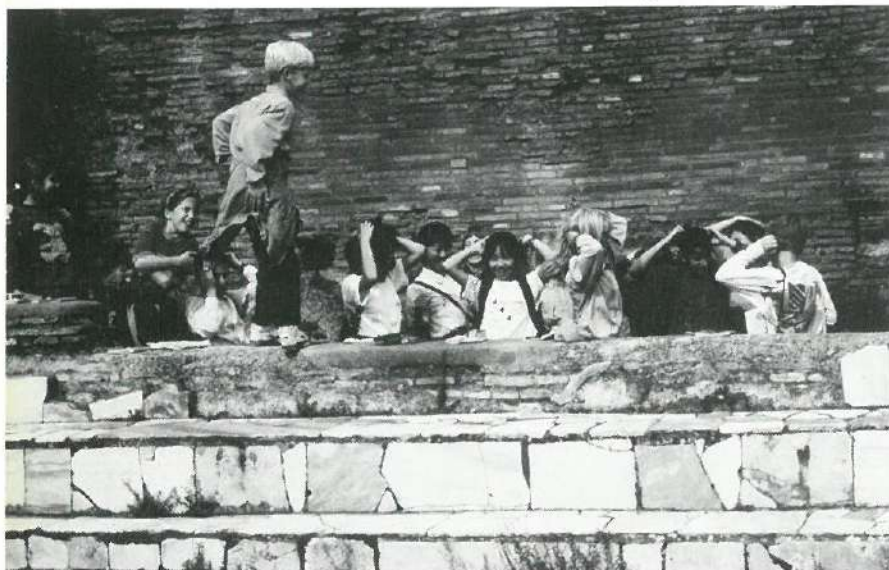

FIELD TRIPS: The Art of the Adventure

Mariko emerges from the past at Cerveteri.

Sixth grade on the run at Circus Maximus bring Roman entertainment up to date.

"Scrubbing up" in a public bath, the sixth grade gets a feel for Roman community life.

At different intervals throughout the year, adventuresome middle schoolers took to the road for a reunion with history. While sixth graders scrambled through archeological sites in search of early Romans, the seventh grade wandered through Medieval Province and Renaissance Italy. Paris, in the meantime, waited like an old friend to tell her rich story to the eighth grade, as the mysteries of Pompeii held their secrets until the Latin students deciphered them.

Exploring Etruscan tomb sites, Yoshiko leaps lightly into Roman history.

At the Martini-Rossi museum, diligent sixth grade note of ancient wine containers.

Mari and Martha copy in the Monastery.

Attentive seventh graders follow Chris's presentation on Florentine guilds.

Yuka catches Florence in a post card.

Davide even dreams the Renaissance.

At the Quay D'Orsay Lorenzo and the eighth grade rediscover Cezanne.

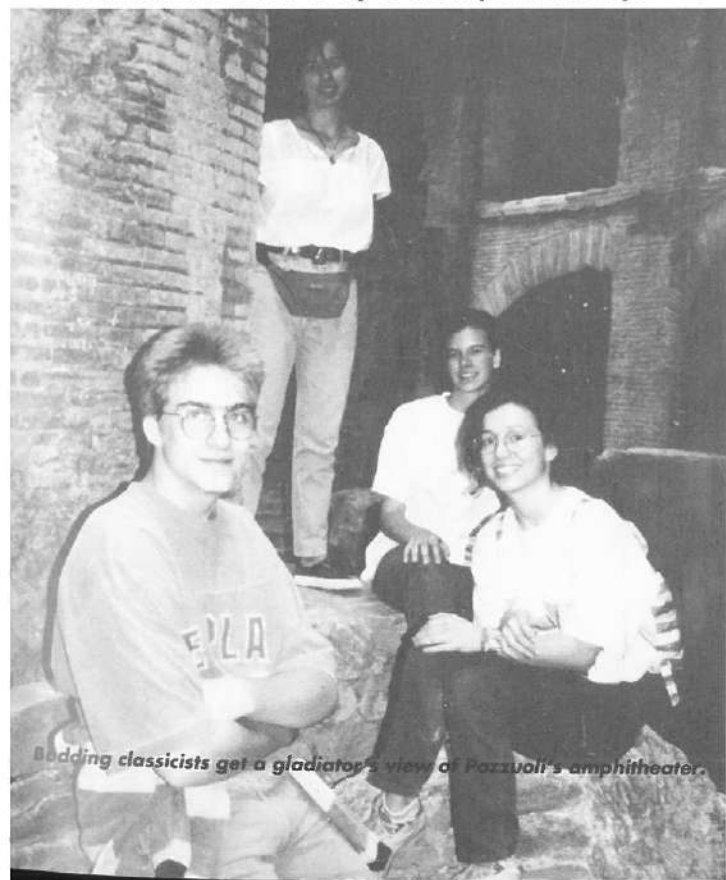

Latin scholars relive a day at a Pompeian bakery.

Cortona: a voyage back in time

The annual 4th and 5th Grade experience in Cortona this year focused on the study of the Middle Ages. A special feature of the trip was a close-up study of Giotto's frescoes in Assisi.

After the long bike ride, the 4th Grade buddies gather for a restful Kodak moment.

The old wooden whale has always been one of the greatest attractions at la Mandria.

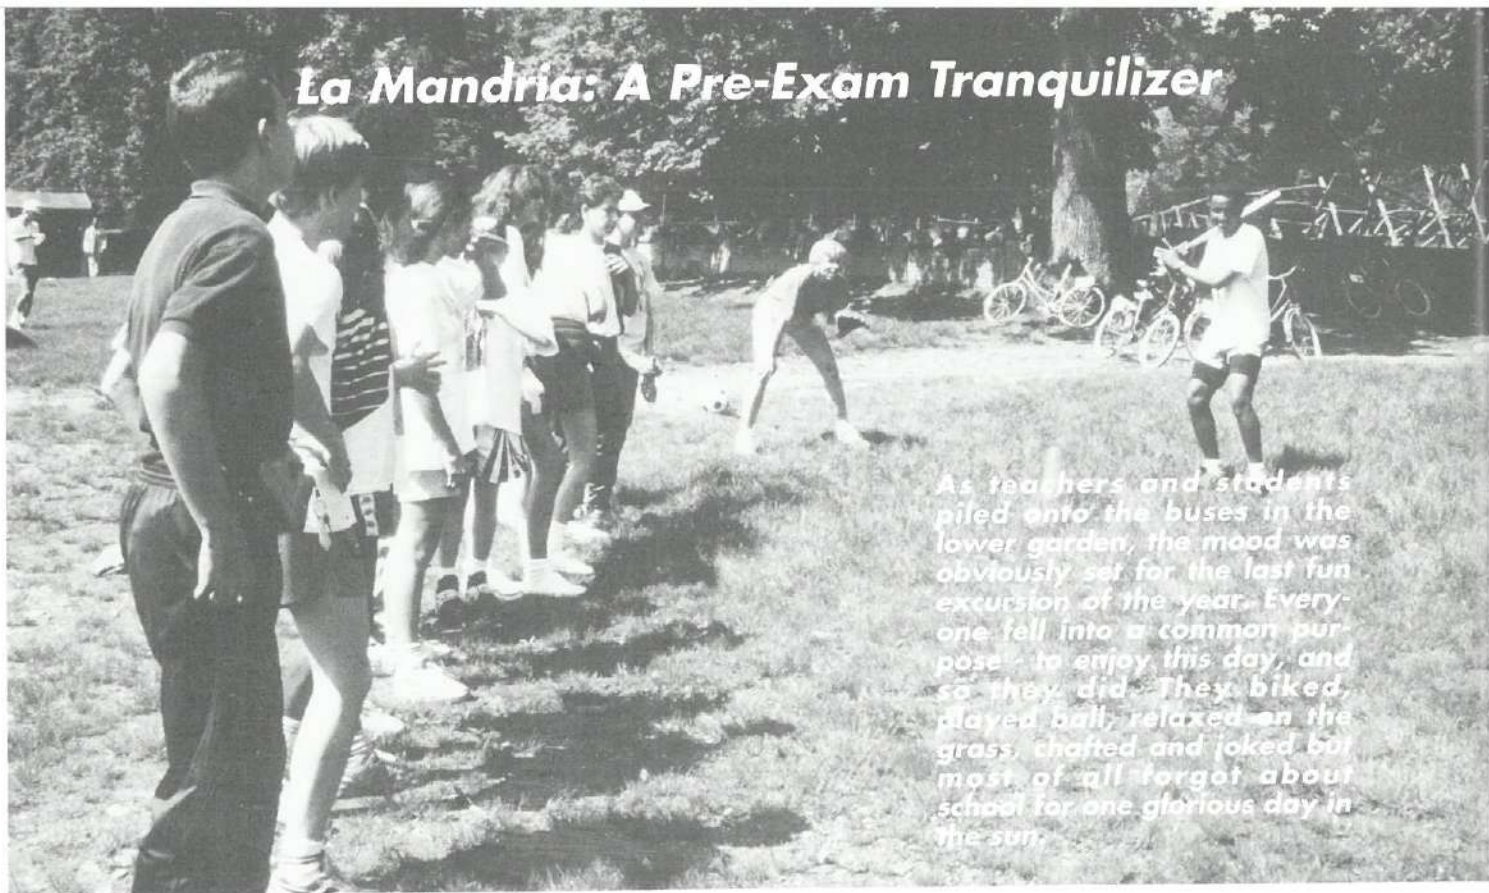

en dads have a chance to relax under the friendly shade of the es.

Under the warm Italian sun the chaperones have a pleasant chat.

La Mandria: A Pre-Exam Tranquilizer

As teachers and students piled onto the buses in the lower garden, the mood was obviously set for the last fun excursion of the year. Everyone fell into a common purpose - to enjoy this day, and so they did. They biked, played ball, relaxed on the grass, chatted and joked but most of all forgot about school for one glorious day in the sun.

Mde. Lencioni prefers a bikeride to a defeat by her students.

By missing the ball, Anna gives a small marginal chance of victory to the teachers.

Then they lost the margin when some slugger from Boston batted.

With Niccolo on the ground and the ball flying, the rampage of "Death" slows down.

La Mandria was a time for a more personal interaction between students and teachers.

Too lazy to play, Carmen and Michele prefer a bit of socializing.

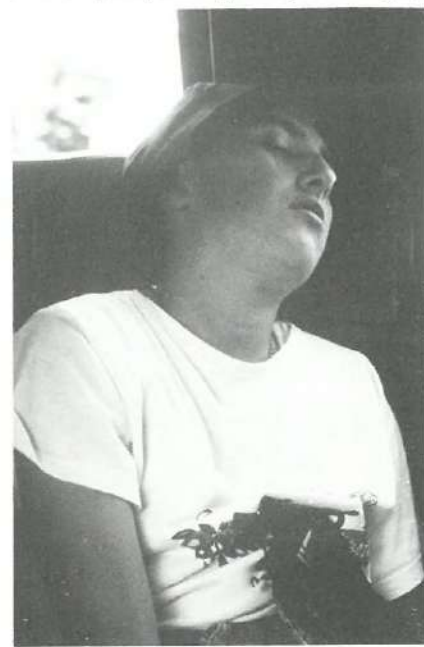

Sick Charlie gets ambulance treatment.

Sarah is quickly reenergized by her orange juice.

Lucina protests on the soccer results decided by coach Vacc. and Ms. Ronzan.

Elementary Closing Exercises: A Sunny Conclusion to a Sunny Year.

From his own year-long observations, Dr. Elliott comments on the unique qualities of each class.

With a gentle word Ms. Lino prepares her nervous charges for the ceremony.

A lively song and dance brings sunshine to the ceremony.

Fidgety elementary "graduates" await their chupa chupa award.

Out of a pleasant confusion comes a happy conclusion to the year's efforts.

Time for a pre-stage inspection.

Swaying with the rhythm, Ms. Hersey pumps up the atmosphere.

The warm afternoon takes its toll on even the sturdiest participants.

Wings and feathers flying, the elementary stimulate a perfect chicken dance.

Surmounting a challenging year, Michele is meritoriously promoted.

Against the colorful background of their national flags, the third graders become fourth graders.

With an air of satisfaction, Sharon looks back on a year well spent.

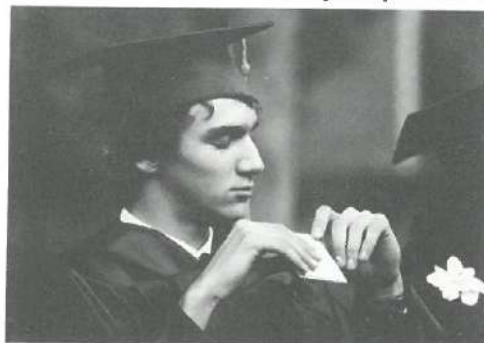

Graduation: Heartfelt thank you's and fond farewells

With conviction Paola leads her classmates to the final ceremony.

With cameras and tears prompted for action, anxious parents await the ceremonies.

Concentrated Gof tries to memorize his song at the last minute.

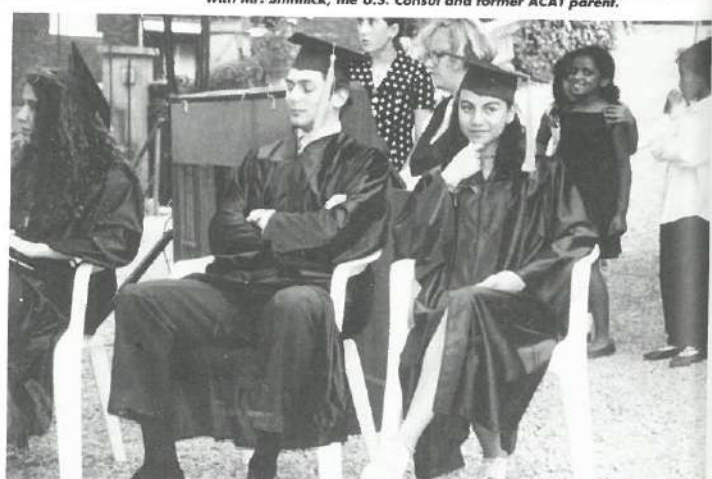

After a hardworking year, the Student Council is recognized for their efforts.

A.C.A.T. alumnus and board president Mr. Pogliano shares the podium with Mr. Shinnick, the U.S. Consul and former ACAT parent.

The members of the National Honor Society are officially recognized before the school community.

While Hector "dreams" about the future, Monica recalls all her special moments at A.C.A.T.

ndful of her own joys, ECIS recipient Francesca, pass-on this year's ECIS award to Kristen.

fter hours of scribbling and scratching out or speech, Valentina's moment has finally me.

Proudly, Silvia steps up to receive the Presidential Academic-Fitness award.

As two old friends come together, graduation closes the generation gap.

While Barbara is now ready to start the next phase of her life ...

To every one's pleasant surprise (even his own dad is) Tony reveals his latent singing talent.

With satisfaction Carola receives her eighth grade promotion certificate.

Graduation is the opportunity for us to say a special thanks to the people who help us.

... Paola cannot believe this is the end of the beginning.

Special Thanks To ...

We cannot possibly name and depict all the people who have helped throughout the year. So, we want to thank everybody who has helped improve the school atmosphere.

... The P.T.A. with their bake sales.

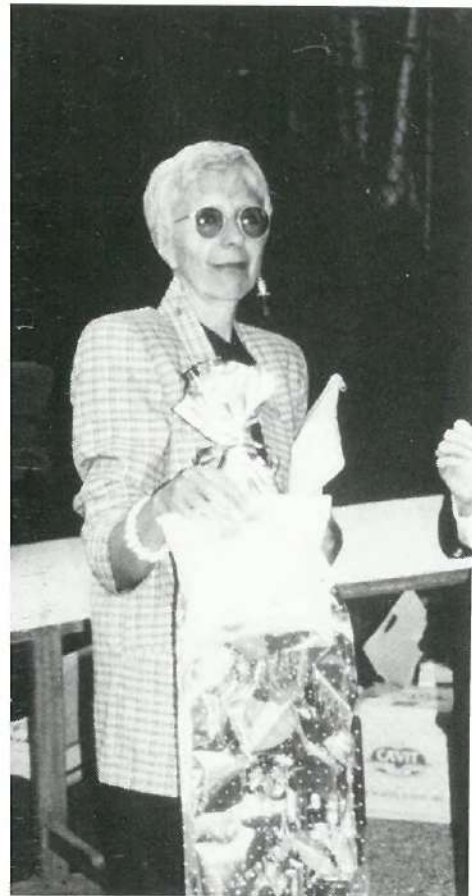

... their fund raising,

... and their creative help;

Ms. Piovano for her dedication to her ESL students;

s. Henderson for her help in the IB program;

Mr. Longbottom for his service as board president;

... And last but not least Mr. Sericano for his help with the Yearbook fundraising.

A black and white photograph of an elderly woman, Bianca Kyler, smiling and looking slightly to her left. She has short, curly, light-colored hair and is wearing a large, ornate floral-patterned jacket. A small, light-colored earring is visible. The background is out of focus, showing foliage and a portion of a plaid chair on the left.
